

WEBINAR: Don't Take it Personally: How to Recover from Mistakes and Stay in the Game

To view the presentation from this webinar, click here.

What separates the top performers from everyone else is that they aren't afraid to take risks and that they are resilient and rebound from mistakes. This seminar helps professionals learn how to manage their own reactions along with the loss of trust or damage to one's reputation that can occur. This seminar teaches techniques from positive psychology and competitive sports that focus on how to quickly rebound from common mistakes. And, how to gain support and rebuild relationships and one's reputation.

Kathryn C. Mayer

www.kcmayer.com

Ms. Mayer has a proven 20-year track record of coaching business professionals, guiding companies through transformative change, and designing training programs to transition professionals into new roles, develop leaders, enhance team dynamics, strengthen core competencies, and change behavior.

Ms. Mayer's passion for competition dates back to her career as a competitive junior tennis player. She was a top ranked amateur tennis player for 25 years. This is where Ms. Mayer first discovered the power of learning from your competition rather than fearing it.

She began her business career in the highly demanding and competitive investment banking (Goldman Sachs and Citigroup) and business consulting industries (Deloitte and Touche) where she honed her unique approach and developed a proprietary strategic leadership development model called Collaborative Competition.™ Ms. Mayer's vision of competition offers clients a win-win strategy to maximize the value of their greatest asset — human capital — to the fullest potential by building on strengths and through collaboration, developing areas that need improvement.